

Future So BRIGHT

FY 2018 ANNUAL REPORT

Mt. Washington
Pediatric Hospital

The stories in these pages showcase some of the ways we've worked to bring a brighter future to each of our patients.

Our staff's outstanding care for the children who come to MWPB makes our hospital unlike anywhere else. Nowhere is that more evident than in the bright smiles of our patients and their families as they heal and grow with hope in their hearts.

In this report, you'll read the amazing story of a young girl who suffered a terrible accident at the age of two, yet has gone on to regain extensive function — all while keeping a sparkle in her eye.

We'll shine a spotlight on the tireless work of our clinicians, as exemplified by pediatric nurse practitioner and lead poisoning program coordinator, Barbara Moore, PNP.

You'll learn about the ways our Learning Assessment Center is helping families meet the educational needs of all learners and is deepening its relationships with schools across the region.

You'll find out about our integrated car seat program — the only one of its kind in the state — dedicated to ensuring that each child we care for is safe while traveling home, no matter how complex their medical needs.

You'll be inspired by the ways our community gives back to our hospital: we were honored to be the recipient of funds raised during the Gilman Lower School's Read-a-Thon this year. You won't believe how much these kids read for the benefit of MWPB patients.

At MWPB, we're confident that the future is bright indeed, thanks to the ongoing support of our generous donors and supporters. Your help makes these stories — and many more like them — possible. Thank you. Together we're building a "future so bright" for MWPB's patients and their families.

Sincerely,

- Providing treatment to all patients in a loving, caring environment

A Philanthropy-Filled FUTURE

The Gilman Lower School Read-a-Thon has been in existence for over 30 years. Its goal is to foster the love of reading in the Lower School's students. The Read-a-Thon also teaches the value of philanthropy — how important it is, and how good it feels to give back.

"Before the Read-a-Thon begins, our students ask sponsors — family, friends, and community members — to pledge a certain amount of money for each 15-minute block of time the student reads. It could be a penny, a nickel, a dime, a quarter, or any other amount," said John Xanders, teacher and outreach coordinator for the Lower School. "Then, students have four weeks to read as much as they can."

When the Lower School's avid readers were looking for a cause to support for this year's Read-a-Thon, passionate Mt. Washington Pediatric Foundation Board member and Gilman School parent, Beth Armacost, took the opportunity to suggest MWPH. School leaders were touched by the hospital's importance in the community and the impact the gift could make for MWPH's patients. "We also liked the fact that MWPH is not only local — it's right down the hill from our school," Xanders said.

Gilman School selected MWPH as the beneficiary of this year's annual Read-a-Thon fundraiser — and you won't believe the results

Although the students couldn't visit the hospital's patients directly because of safety precautions, Jill Feinberg, vice president of development and external affairs at MWPH, came to Gilman to show the students what their fundraising efforts would mean for MWPH. She talked about what it means to be a young philanthropist, giving time, talent, and treasure to support organizations you believe in. "The boys were so enthusiastic," she said. "This philanthropic project matches perfectly with the Gilman values."

When Feinberg came back a month later, for the Read-a-Thon's conclusion, she was amazed. The Lower School students had raised $26,570 for MWPH. About 90 percent of the school's students participated in this year's Read-a-Thon. The Lower School's gift will go toward the hospital's Rosenberg Outpatient Center expansion, helping the hospital serve more kids with outpatient services in rehabilitation, psychology, and primary care.

"We've increased the amount of money we've raised almost each year," Xanders said. "This year, our goal was $25,000 — and we exceeded it. We were delighted with our partnership with MWPH."

"I was overwhelmed by the generosity of the Gilman Lower School community," said Armacost. "My hope is that MWPH will not just benefit in the short term from the Read-a-Thon, but also begin a long term relationship with Gilman and its families."

Lead poisoning is

preventable, but it takes a community coming together to overcome the challenge.

Barbara Moore, PNP is dedicated to fighting lead poisoning, the number one cause of preventable developmental delays in children

to a Lead-

MWPH proudly has the only clinical lead poisoning program in Maryland. Led by pediatric nurse practitioner Barbara Moore, PNP, the multidisciplinary program reaches beyond the hospital's walls to address the sources of lead poisoning, as well as its symptoms and long-term effects.

An elevated level of lead in the blood can harm a child's brain function and cause developmental delays. Children most often come into contact with lead through lead paint, which is common in homes built before 1978. Lead poisoning is 100 percent preventable, but it takes a community coming together to overcome the challenge.

Moore came to MWPH in 1995, working in the inpatient unit. Three years later, she took ownership of the hospital's lead poisoning program. When Moore started in the program, the Baltimore region was in the midst of a lead poisoning epidemic.

"I saw 150 children in the program's first three months," Moore said. "It took off from there."

Moore redesigned the hospital's lead poisoning services into a nurse practitioner-led program with an inpatient component as well as an outpatient clinic. In addition to Moore's expertise, the program's multidisciplinary team includes nursing, child life, and social work professionals, all working together in the outpatient clinic.

Children are typically referred by primary care providers after a lead screening test has shown high levels of lead in the blood. Moore and her team start with a health history and physical exam and also developmental screening to assess delays. If the lead level in a child's blood is too high, the child is admitted to MWPH for chelation therapy. At any given time, Moore and her team are following hundreds of patients.

A key part of the program's success is Moore's dedication to comprehensive community involvement. She works closely with the Baltimore City Health Department, the Maryland Department of the Environment, and community health providers and is a member of the governor's Lead Poisoning Prevention Commission.

Moore and her team assist with referrals to early intervention programs for children with special needs, including Child Find and Maryland's Infants and Toddlers Program. The team also refers to MWPH's behavioral psychology, neuropsychology, and physical, occupational, and speech therapy services.

It's critical to identify the source of lead in the child's environment and to help the family address the problem. Moore often makes referrals to grant programs, environmental programs, and state HUD programs that are available to help families remove lead from the child's environment.

"The most rewarding part of the job is when we're able to help families work together to address the problem on all fronts," said Moore. "We aim to support children's developmental progress, leading to their return home to a safe, lead free environment."

"I love my job because it combines family-focused care with coordination of services, pulling it all together for the families we work with."

Heading Home SAFE & SOUND

As anyone who has tried to install one knows, children's car seats are incredibly intricate. Installation guidelines vary depending on the car seat model, the child's age, size, and weight, the car make and model, available car seat connection types, and various other factors. Year after year, studies are released showing that nearly 90% percent of infant and child car seats are installed incorrectly.

To address this need, MWPH has established an integrated car seat program, which is funded by the Mt. Washington Pediatric Foundation. With this program, MWPH became the only hospital in Maryland for children with special needs to require that each inpatient has a car seat check completed before the child is discharged.

"Proper positioning of a child's car seat can make a life-or-death difference. It's one of the few times you can see an immediate impact for your investment of time," said Melissa Beasley, MWPH's community advocacy manager. "Our hospital uses extensive time, energy, and resources to help each child heal and grow at MWPH to the point that they're healthy enough to go home. It just makes sense to take that extra step to ensure that they're safe on the way home."

MWPH's integrated car seat program ensures safe travels for discharged patients

Nearly 90%
of infant and child car seats are installed incorrectly.

MWPH is the only hospital in Maryland for children with special needs to require that each inpatient has a car seat check completed before the child is discharged.

In addition to car seat installation, the program includes parent or caregiver education and training, as well as tolerance testing to make sure that each child can handle being in a car seat.

"Parents are typically surprised that the car seats are so complex," said Lauren Brown, MWPH's lead car seat technician. "Once we go through the training and preparation process, though, they are happy and relieved that their child will be safe when traveling in the car."

At car seat installation appointments, technicians educate parents about everything related to their child's car seat. Appointments can last an hour or more, particularly for kids who will be going home with special medical equipment. After the techs demonstrate correct installation, the parents practice installing the car seat themselves, until they are comfortable and can do it consistently. Technicians also do a lot of problem solving with parents, helping them accommodate multiple car seats or adding levelers to counteract the sloping seats popular in many cars.

The integrated car seat program is one more way that MWPH is different from other children's hospitals. "Parents often say, 'My child was admitted to another hospital before coming to MWPH, and they just wanted to know that we had a car seat. They didn't take the time to help us install it correctly,'" said Brown.

MWPH's commitment to our patients' well-being extends beyond our doors, as we help get them back on the road to a sunnier tomorrow.

In June, the LAC moved to a

in Mt. Washington Village making it easier than ever for families to take advantage of its services.

Learning Assessment Center BRILLIA in the Commu

It's natural for parents to want to give their children the best possible opportunities to learn and grow.

Yet for children with learning disabilities and other challenges, school can be a tough place to be. MWPH's Learning Assessment Center (LAC) helps families meet their children's educational needs by providing comprehensive psychoeducational evaluations for elementary to college-aged students. Jill Gatzke, PsyD, the LAC's clinical coordinator, has years of experience in assessing educational challenges and helping kids and families find solutions.

In June, the LAC moved to a new space in Mt. Washington Village. With a bright new office, plenty of nearby parking, and a selection of the area's best shops and restaurants, the LAC's new location makes it easier than ever for families to take advantage of its services.

In addition to the move to Mt. Washington Village, Dr. Gatzke has focused on developing partnerships with local schools. Earlier this year, she gave a presentation on the non-traditional learner to school counselors and teachers from the Association of Independent Maryland Schools (AIMS). The LAC team has attended school fairs and other functions in order to meet parents and school staff, share information about the services the LAC provides, and answer questions. The LAC has also sent letters to area schools, describing the center, what it offers, and how it can help schools meet the learning needs of all of their students.

"Getting to know the schools in our area, as well as the students and parents they serve, allows us to make the most effective recommendations possible... Making sure the schools know about how we can help means that more families will contact the LAC to schedule a consultation."

JILL GATZKE, PSYD, LAC clinical coordinator

MWPH's LAC shines a light on opportunities for students with learning differences

"We have turned our attention to getting the word out about the LAC's services for a few reasons," said Dr. Gatzke. "First, getting to know the schools in our area, as well as the students and parents they serve, allows us to make the most effective recommendations possible. Second, making sure the schools know about how we can help means that more families will contact the LAC to schedule a consultation."

The LAC's evaluations create a comprehensive picture of a child's education-related strengths and challenges. These assessment results — and the recommendations that develop from them — help families make decisions about school placement, receive standardized testing accommodations, and better meet their child's educational needs. Every evaluation is conducted by a licensed psychologist who specializes in learning disabilities. Assessments are tailored to the student and assess areas including processing speed, memory, attention, concentration, and test anxiety, in addition to academic skills (such as reading, writing, and math).

The LAC continues to grow as it settles in its new location and spreads roots into the Baltimore community. Dr. Gatzke and the LAC team are poised to shine an even brighter light on the educational challenges of children and youth.

This is a story about a little girl surpassing expectations and looking ahead to a bright future, despite unimaginable challenges.

In 2010, Hailey Withers was a typical two-year-old, living with her mother in Florida. Then, the unthinkable happened: she fell in the bathtub and broke her neck. Her catastrophic injury was the result of fused vertebrae in her neck, which had been present at birth but had not been noticeable to her family or her pediatrician.

She received lifesaving care in Florida and was eventually transferred to Maryland, seeing specialists of all kinds. The accident had left Hailey paralyzed from the neck down, unable to move her arms and legs, and the long-term outlook was disheartening.

“They told us she wouldn’t ever talk, wouldn’t be able to eat on her own, wouldn’t be able to walk — wouldn’t be able to do anything,” said Dawn Acab, Hailey’s grandmother, who has had custody of Hailey since 2012.

Three years ago, Hailey met Virginia Keane, MD, a pediatrician at MWPH who specializes in working with children who have complex medical needs. Dr. Keane had hope that with a specialized rehabilitation program, Hailey could make progress.

Shining BRIGHT

Hailey Withers is all smiles thanks to an amazing recovery

Hailey started an intense course of weekly therapy, including physical therapy to help her move around and occupational therapy to help her with activities of daily living. She bonded with her therapists and looked forward to each appointment as a special sort of playtime. And Hailey started to blossom.

"When I first met her, she was on a ventilator, in a wheelchair, and could barely move. We got her into the rehabilitation program at MWPH, and she just took off," Dr. Keane said.

As she worked with her therapy team, Hailey began to achieve milestones. She gradually came off the ventilator. She taught herself how to sit up, then to scoot herself around. In order to be ready to eat on her own, Hailey went through careful, step-by-step practice to train her muscles to chew and swallow safely. Eventually, she had her feeding tube removed.

Diligent speech therapy helped her to use her voice and to speak clearly despite her tracheostomy.

Today, 10-year-old Hailey can walk 600 feet at a time with her walker. She lights up the faces of those around her with her jokes and cleverness, and is now enjoying all courses of her meals, just as many other kids do. "She just amazes me every day," Acab said.

In many ways, Hailey is able to be just like any other fourth grader in her class. When she's not at school, she loves to draw, build things, and play with Barbies. Her favorite color is pink, and she loves to sing and dance. Hailey is now handling more and more of her own self-care and continues to see Dr. Keane every three months.

"Hailey has amazing self-motivation, and she is not afraid of hard work. We're hoping that with additional therapy, she will eventually walk on her own," said Dr. Keane. "This is pretty remarkable for someone with a spinal cord injury. She continues to learn new things — and will continue to progress." Step by step, Hailey is moving forward to a brighter future.

"Everyone who works at MWPH has always helped me with every aspect of her care, no matter how small. I can always reach out to Dr. Keane, and she gets right back to me. She is always looking for what else we can do for Hailey."

DAWN ACAB, Hailey's grandmother

Mt. Washington Pediatric Hospital is a place where children with complex medical conditions can get the integrated care they need.

We're not like acute care hospitals that focus on emergent conditions; we're a specialty hospital that helps children recover from illness and injury. From quick outpatient visits to longer stays, we're here to support children's healing, to get them back home, back to school, and back to their lives. MWPH's multidisciplinary team works with both the child and the family to create a supportive and healing environment both here and at home.

ACCREDITATIONS

Our accreditations include The Joint Commission, College of American Pathologists (CAP), CARF International – the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities – for the Comprehensive Integrated Inpatient Rehabilitation Program and Pediatric Specialty Care, and American Psychological Association (Psychology Internship). The Johns Hopkins Pediatric Sleep Center at Mt. Washington Pediatric Hospital is also certified by the American Academy of Sleep Medicine. The Child Life Program at MWPH has been granted accreditation by the Association of Child Life Professionals.

INPATIENT SERVICES

The Center for Neonatal Transitional Care (CNTC)* serves babies who no longer need to be in a NICU, yet need a medically stable environment to ensure their growth, feeding, and readiness to go home. Our staff treats babies who are born prematurely, with feeding issues or pulmonary disease, or are weaning off of medication. Our goal is to prepare babies and their families to go home together.

Pediatric Complex Care Program* transitions children with chronic or complex medical illnesses to home. While assisting children in becoming medically ready for life at home, MWPH provides families the knowledge and skills to meet all complex care needs.

The Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Program helps children recover from traumatic injuries, illness or surgery, such as limb reconstruction following multiple fractures, post-surgical orthopaedic rehabilitation, management of burns or wounds, neurological disorders, spinal cord injury, amputation or brain injury.

DAY PROGRAMS

Our Hospital Day Programs provide daytime treatment for children who require intensive interventions for rehabilitation or feeding needs and incorporate therapies and medical treatment with meals, educational services and other activities.
